The Accountant's camera.

We didn't plan it that way.

We always thought accountants were mainly interested in numbers and dollars and capital gains and things like that. So we were surprised when they started buying our Nikkormat FTN Camera.

Because we designed the Nikkormat as a fine 35mm camera for dedicated photographers who live and breathe photography.

We figured maybe it was because accountants have a good eye for value and couldn't resist a bargain. But that doesn't account for all the teachers and computer programmers and salesmen.

Now it's all becoming clear. It seems that a lot of people are buying the Nikkormat because, while it is a fine camera, it's also surprisingly uncomplicated. And it takes beautifully sharp, clear pictures, even in dim light.

But what they didn't know is that the Nikkormat is habit forming. It gets them involved in photography before they know it. Suddenly they find themselves doing artistic, interesting things. And neighbors start asking for prints. Often, they're involved after the first roll.

Happily, as their interest grows, the Nikkormat grows with them. Because it's part of the famous Nikon System, the most complete in 35mm photography. Yet it costs less than $280, including a 50mm f2 Auto-Nikkor lens.

So go ahead and get a Nikkormat FTN, no matter what your profession.

And, as a Nikkormat owner, you can attend the Nikon School, a two-day course that teaches you the fine points of 35mm photography for only $20.

See your camera dealer or write for details. Nikon, Inc., Garden City, New York 11530. Subsidiary of Ehrenreich Photo-Optical Industries, Inc. (Visit Nikon House in N.Y.)

PICTORIAL PHOTOGRAPHY

Perceiving changes in the arts is always difficult when viewed from a one year to the next basis. It's like the visitor to the seashore who's watching the water's level to determine the direction of the tide. He sees ripples and wavelets creeping up and down the sands, but only by lengthy watching can he observe the tide's movement. The Pictorial Salon visitor, within a single year, perceives nothing but minor and insignificant movements. The general trend is only evident after the passage of many years. What is happening in pictorial photography is scarcely clear. This year's special show focuses on the "what's happening" problem with a look at the pictorial prints of the past.

After its public announcement in 1839, photography was to be a medium for reporting and recording objects, people, and places. As this medium became better developed, picture making became more concerned with the purely aesthetic factors of line, mass, color, and value. By the mid 1890's "Pictorialism" began to grow into an international movement. Some pictorialists began to work with the manipulative and coloristic techniques of gum-bichromate and platinum printing. By the turn of the century, the multiple gum-print had become one of the most important printing processes for the pictorialists. Other photographers utilized soft focus and high keyed tonalities to de-emphasize details. Manipulation reached its Zenith during the 1920's and early '30's with the refinement and popularization of the Bromoil, carbon Fresson, and Carbro processes.

This year's special show contains but a small sample of pictorial photography from the first half of the 20th Century. Also on display are several of the cameras used by the pictorialist and hobbyist of yesteryear. The bulk and complexity of these cameras makes the achievements of the pictorialist even more impressive.

Among the dozen Bromoils in this show are a few of the many landscapes done by Chas. K. Archer and a Bromoil by Leonard Misonne, a past-master of the scenic genre. The multiple gum process is illustrated by F. O. Libby's winter view of Pittsburgh, "Floating Ice". Four carbon Fresson prints by J. Ortiz Echague show the capacity of this now obsolete manipulative process in the hands of an expert. In addition to examples of the seldom practiced palladium, platinum, and carbon processes there are many Bromide prints showing the range of subjects explored in the '20's, '30's, and '40's. Pittsburgh being an industrial city, it was natural that Pittsburghers Byron Chatto, O. C. Reiter, O. E. Romig, and P. F. Squire would produce many fine pictorial prints of industrial scenes. Studies of the human figure are also shown in the works of Z. Herczegh.

Valentino Buttignol
Chairman, Special Exhibits

Prints in this show are mainly from the Photographic Section's permanent print collection and were originally from the collections of Chas. K. Archer and O. E. Romig. Others who made prints available are Mrs. B. Chatto, Mrs. John Irwin, Mrs. Z. Herczegh, and Mr. W. R. Squire. The cameras are from the private collection of Mr. Q. J. Bailey.

THANK YOU . . .

Mr. Leon Arkus, Director, Museum of Art, Carnegie Institute, for his continued support and interest in presenting this Salon

WOLK'S CAMERA EXCHANGE

HIGH FIDELITY CENTER

312 Forbes Avenue

Downtown Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15222

Complete Selection of Finest Camera and High Fidelity Equipment

The
quiet one.

The quieter, the better.

After all, when you're showing your slides, you've got better things to listen to than the slide projector.

That's why we've made the new Kodak Carousel projectors a lot more quiet. Whisper quiet! So you can enjoy the showing a lot more. Quietly.

We've done it by using a much more efficient quartz-halogen lamp. So the cooling fan can turn slower, quieter.

The quiet ones all go by the name of Kodak Carousel H projectors. Your photo dealer can give you a show and a listen. Prices start at less than $80.

Kodak makes your pictures count.
